This workshop aims to improve patient outcomes by incorporating nutrition therapy into standards of best practice patient care. The interactive workshop will help healthcare professionals understand the value of a healthy nutrition status and learn about the practical application of clinical nutrition best practices, including nutrition assessment, intervention and monitoring.

This workshop brings together experts from Australia and Malaysia to share the latest scientific and practical knowledge through lectures, interactive sessions and case studies to enhance skills in the nutrition care of the older population.

OBJECTIVES

- Discuss the latest evidence on the role of nutrition management in aging.
- Explain the roles of nutrition and physical activity in the prevention and treatment age related conditions including sarcopenia and frailty, dementia and diabetes mellitus.
- Explain how to provide, monitor, and manage nutrition therapy for older patients to support patient recovery from illness and improve long term outcomes.
